Explanation of the different prices:

- Purchase price: the price that you pay for the tickets.
- Selling price: the advice price that the consumer should pay. The sales price (is not mandatory) but depends on the deal between you and the partner.
- Scale (optional): if there is an active scale, the purchase price can vary depending on the quantity of selected tickets. E.g the purchase price becomes lower when you order more tickets.

Save

- Click on a date in the calendar. On the right side time slots will become available to your choosing. Click on the preferred time slot and then save.

Booking a time slot is necessary so the location will know when to expect the consumer or group at the entrance. In this example, the time slot of 10:00 till 11:00 PM gives the consumer a time range of an hour to use their ticket at the entrance to get in to the location. The ticket has a validation of an hour to be scanned at the entrance.

- After selecting a preferred time and date the calendar will lit green. The new ticket validation will be shown under the chosen price type. In the example below this ticket is only valid on April 1st 2021 between 10:00-11:00 PM.

- If needed, follow the same steps above when booking a different price type.
- In the shop you also have the option to purchase parking tickets.

Parking tickets are not connected to a calendar function. A parking ticket has a set validation. A parking ticket can only be used once between this set period.

To book parking tickets, enter the needed amount.

8. After you have selected the tickets, you have the option to add extra information. This information will be added to the invoice. For example a company name for the booking, group name, or a special reference number. See below.

Extra information

9. At Total, the total amount is given for the transaction. Orders are no longer booked on a set amount of deposit available to you. Ordering tickets is decided by a specific maximum of tickets available to you. Check the total amount before clicking next.
